

Bridging the gap between science and practice®

2014 Lawrence A. Golding
Student Health/Fitness Scholarship

Background: This annual award will be given in honor of Lawrence A. Golding, Ph.D., FACSM past chair of the Health and Fitness Summit program planning committee, and immediate past editor of ACSM's Health and Fitness Journal.

ACSM and Healthy Learning™, who are underwriting this award, will be granting two awards per year.

Applicants: Designed to publicly recognize and honor undergraduate students who have made significant outstanding contributions to their communities in health, fitness and/or education.

Those applying should be exceptional leaders and students in their school and/or community.

Students in either their sophomore through senior year are encouraged to apply, and must meet the following requirements:

Requirements:

1. Must (at time of application), be a student in good standing in either their sophomore through senior year student majoring in exercise and health or a related field.
2. Must be a current ACSM member in good standing (regular or alliance)
3. Must have a faculty sponsor (he/she must sign application)
4. Applicants must type their answers to all questions, follow all instructions and complete the official application and submit electronically to ACSM on or before 11/8/13.

Incomplete applications will not be considered.

Each winner will receive:

- $1,000 award will be provided in the spring after the official announcement is made.
- $1,000 credit to be used in the ACSM store to purchase DVDs, books or wearables.
- Complimentary registration to the 2014 Summit in Atlanta, Georgia (April 1-4, 2014), where the award will be presented in person to each winner.
- Feature store will appear in ACSM's Health & Fitness Journal®.
